Module Two

lines 2

exploring the opposite sex

Men and women. Are they beings from different planets to be handled with extreme caution... whether for procreative purposes or otherwise? Just how different or similar are they? And do they attract or attack? Lifelines 2 explores the complexities of opposite-sex relating and unravels the mysteries of gender and sexuality. Discover what makes men and women tick—their physiology, psychology and strategies for love and friendship. Whatever your intentions with the opposite sex—being friends or getting hitched—learn the ropes of “man”-agement for deeply-satisfying relationships. Find out if sex is overrated and if you’re only half a human by remaining single and celibate. Don’t miss these and other life-and-death insights shared by our team comprising a gynaecologist, professional counsellor, youth worker and family-life educator amongst others. ### Topic: Men & Women: Opposites Attract Or Attack Personality and perception differences between men and women create tension and discord. So how can opposites attract? Instead, do they attack? What is it about men and women that draw them together, sexually and emotionally? Is that written in our genetic code... if not, can one learn the ropes? Leslie examines what sex and sexuality is all about and tries to make sense of gender roles in contemporary society. In his other life, Leslie is a creative consultant and author.

Topic: Falling In (& Out) Of Love

What exactly happens when one falls in love? Can one fall out of love just as quickly? Jerry and Chuk should know. Theirs is a love song that has seen them serenading both the high and low notes. Discover how to bank on what is truly valuable and lovable, make your relationship count and perhaps arrive at a "happily-ever-after" finale. In his other life, Jerry is a family-life educator, while Chuk is an accountant (and they are both happily newly-wed?)

Topic: Marriage: Bonding Or Bondage

Tying the knot seems nice and peachy... or kinky, depending on one's perspective. But why marry and depend on a piece of paper to keep strings attached? So how does one keep marriage ties alive? Serene has been working on hers for the last 22 years—finding ways to enhance the bonding experience, though readily admitting that sometimes, it feels more like bondage. In her other life, Serene heads a department working with youth in a school.

Topic: Singlehood: Choice Or No Choice

Given a choice, who in their right mind would choose to be single? That is, celibate—yes, no genital contact in any context. Period. It's probably a woman's thing these days—highly-qualified, assertive career women left on the shelf after their "sell-by" dates. As for the men, celibacy may yet be a cover for homosexuality, or impotency. Annie finds out as she explores her own reasons for her singleness. In her other life, Annie is a driven and single-minded counsellor.

Topic: Till Death Do Us Part—But I'm Not Dead Yet

It's that familiar part of the marriage vow where couples promise to stay together forever. It's a lovely thought, but can anyone be expected to take this seriously? After all, so many people part ways and find their marriages at a dead end long before either partner bites the dust. What are the lethal factors? Conflict, commitment and communication. Serene shares insights on how to tackle fatal areas so as to build strong and enduring marriages.

Topic: Chocolate Better Than Sex—Really?

Sex energises! Find out why as Su Min explains what happens to our bodies when we respond sexually. But is there anything else like it? Well, ever since the Mayans first cultivated cocoa beans, chocolate, which is derived from them, is believed to produce a sense of elation similar to an orgasm. Which is better? Su Min muses. In his other life, Su Min is a retired gynaecologist—but still enjoying chocolates... and yes, that too!

Topic: Abortion: Why Not?

Abortion is divisive. Pro-choice advocates that women have the right to determine what is good for her life and body, and not be forced to bear the consequences of rape, incest or ill health by having a baby. Pro-life decry abortion as murder and seeks to protect the foetus and defend the intrinsic value of all human life. Jennifer considered both sides at two critical points in her youth. In her other life, Jennifer reaches out to teens and young adults of today.
